Submission and Management of Property Listings or Advertisements

Each property seller agrees to provide right-properties.in with property-related information such as descriptions, images, videos, financial details, contact information, and other relevant data only after obtaining all necessary rights and permissions from the rightful property owner or power-of-attorney holder. This includes securing authorization from document holders, photographers or copyright holders of the images or videos used.

Right-properties.in does not claim ownership, directly or indirectly, over any content, listings, or banner advertisements hosted on the platform. These listings are purely a paid display of advertising space, and right-Properties.in does not independently verify the accuracy, authenticity, or legal compliance of such images, banners, or listings.

Certain property listings may include third-party audio or video materials (“AV Content”) provided solely for informational purposes. Such content should not be construed as professional advice, recommendation, or solicitation. Neither right-properties.in nor the AV content providers guarantee the accuracy or completeness of this material.

The property seller consents to right-properties.in, all rights to use, reproduce, and publish any data or content submitted—including text, images, and videos—for marketing, promotional, and publicity activities without any information to property seller and any compensation. If a seller provides voice samples or recordings for generating video listings, they grant right-Properties.in a royalty-free, irrevocable, worldwide, sublicensable, and transferable license to use, adapt, or develop such audio materials as deemed appropriate by the right-properties.in website.

If the property seller or buyer falls within the scope of the RERA act of India, they must ensure that all necessary approvals, licenses, and permits are duly obtained from the relevant authorities concerning the property, project, or land in question. Both parties must always comply with all applicable laws governing real estate listings.

The property seller or buyer must disclose all essential and factual details required by law, including RERA registration information, property status, ownership nature, and whether the property is free of encumbrances. Sellers must also provide a clear summary of the property’s title, ownership, and possession details. right-Properties.in may, at its discretion, request supporting documents or proof to validate these claims.

In certain cases, sellers or buyers may be required to submit an affidavit or declaration affirming the authenticity and accuracy of the details shared. Right-properties.in reserves the right to review, verify, or remove any listings suspected of violating these terms conditions. Additionally, the platform may ask for further evidence of compliance from sellers accused of submitting false or misleading data.

Right-properties.in also retains full discretion to terminate the accounts of any sellers, buyers or others who repeatedly or knowingly breach these terms and conditions and may deny them future access to the Service.

Property sellers further agree to allow their listings or any part thereof to be viewed, searched, downloaded, or referenced by potential buyers through right-Properties.in. The platform reserves exclusive authority over how listings are indexed, displayed, or accessed and may modify property data as required to enhance visibility or maintain platform standards.

Furthermore, both property sellers and buyers agree to the following.
